Democrats drop anti-reflagging move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats said Wednesday they were dropping efforts to delay President Rouald Reagan's plans to protect Roward oil tankers, one week before U.S. warsings were expected to begin their escort duty in the Gulf. "This vote will be the end of it as far as I'm concerned," Senate majority leaser Rebert Byrd said shortly before senators refused to break a Reproducen following the chamber from seeking a delay in the escort plans. "We've made our point that a majority of the Senate is opposed to this policy," Mr. Byrd said. The Democratic-controlled chamber voted 55-44, six votes short of the 60 needed to impose cloture, the parliamentary manoenvre used to end a filiboster. It was the third time in a week that the Senate refused to invoke cloture. With Democrats holding a 54.46 margin in the chamber, Republicans have been able to muster enough votes to block the cloture attempts. At issue was a proposal which called for a 90-day delay in Mr. Reagan's plans. The two earlier votes were on a different proposal, setking to put the Gulf policy "in abeyance" for an undetermined time. (See related story on page 2)

Kanaan returns after talks in Britain

AMMAN (Petra) — Flanning Minister Taher Kanaan returned from Britain on Wednesday after talks with officials at the Overseas Development Administration (ODA) regarding capital and technical aid offered to Jordan by the British government to help the Kingdom's development projects. Dr. Kanaan, in an arrival statement, said that the talks focused on projects which will be financed from a £10 million British development loan as well as proposed projects for the occupied Arab territories which would be financed from a £5 million British technical aid programme. During the visit Dr. Kanaan met with the British minister, of state for overseas development and trade, and the minister of state for foreign and Commonwealth affairs with whom he discussed bilateral cooperation and British support for Jordan's development projects. Dr. Kanaan also added that he visited Scotland where he held talks with the Scotlish Development Agency and the Council of Educational Technologies which is cooperating with the Ministry of Education and the Royal Scientific Society in a programme for introducing computer at the secondary school

LONDON (Petra) - His Majesty King Hussein on Wednesday held talks with British Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe on efforts towards convening an international peace conference on the Middle East, the Iran-Iraq war, international issues and bilateral relations. The King, who is on a private visit to London. held talks with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher on Monday.

Former PNC speaker arrives

RAMTHA (Petra) - Khaled Al Fahoum, former speaker of the Paleatine National Council (PNC), arrived here via Ramtha on Wednesday on a private visit to Jordan. Mr. Fahoum said he was on a private visit to have his daughter undergo surgery after His Majesty King Hussein instructed that his daughter be treated at the King Hussein Medical Centre. Lower House of Parliament Deputy Speaker Ismail Hi-jazi welcomed Mr. Fahoum and conveyed to him the greetings of His Majesty the King and those of the Lower House speaker and members. Mr. Fahoum was received upon arrival by Mr. Hijazi, Irbid Governor Akram Al Naser and other officials.

Waldheim invited to Egypt

VIENNA (AP) — Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdul Meguid confirmed Wednesday that his country had invited Austrian President Kurt Waldheim to visit, but said the date has yet to be determined. Dr. Waldheim has visited only the Vatican and Jordan since being elected president a year ago. Mr. Abdul Meguid told a news conference at the end of a three-day visit to Austria that he handed Dr. Waldheim an invitation from Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak during talks with the Austrian leader on Tuesday.

BAHRAIN (R) — King Fahd of Saudi Arabia has voiced support for the Arab League, which faces serious financial problems, to enable it carry on its work, the Sandi Press Agency (SPA) reported. The monarch made the pledge in a meeting with Arab League Secretary-General Chadli Klibi at the summer resort of Taif Tuesday night. King Fahd said Saudi Arabia would support "all Arah League matters to enable it carry out responsibilities in serving the Arah World's causes and achieving its aims," the agency said. Mr. Klibi, who earlier visited Syria, Jordan and Kuwait, was in Saudi Arabia to discuss the convening of a long-delayed Arab summit meeting in Riyadh later this year.

Syrian paper welcomes EC move

DAMASCUS (R) - A leading Syrian newspaper said Wednesday that a European Community (EC) decision to lift an eightmonth-old han on high-level contacts with Syria was a victory for reason. The ban was part of a package of EC sanctions imposed at Britain's request after Syrian agents were implicated in a Brit-ish court in an alleged attempt to blow up an Israeli airliner in London. The semi-official newspeper Al Thawra said the deci-sion by EC foreign ministers to lift the ban "represents a victory for the voice of reason and wisdom."

LONDON (R) — King Hassan of Morocco, in Britain on a state visit, held talks with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher on Wednesday amid protests that he was here to buy British arms for his Western Sahara war.

British officials said the king, who was later due to meet several ministers, would discuss Morocco's 11-year-old conflict against the Algerian-hacked Polisario guerrillas, Middle East peace and the country's trade position with the European Community (EC).

They also said a discussion of arms sales was quite possible as the king is his own defence minister and would be meeting Defence Secretary George Younger. But they added Britain would not change its position of neutrality in the conflict.

His visit was greeted by pro-tests from parliament's House of Lords and Polisario officials in London.

Fifty Lords, backed hy 100 opposition members of parliament from the House of Commons, petitioned the government not to sell the king any arms, saying he was "an autocratic ruler waging a bloody colonial war.'

KUWAIT (Agencies) — Kuwait has formally requested Britain to re-register some of its tankers ander the British flag to enjoy British naval protection in the Gulf, diplomatic sources said Wednesday.

They said the request was made Tuesday by Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Saud Mohammed Al Ösaimi in a meeting with British Ambassador Peter Hinchcliffe.

Mr. Hinchcliffe was quoted by a local newspaper on Sunday as. saving Britain would consider any such Kuwaiti request.

Kuwaii, whose shipping has come under Iranian attack in recent months, asked to charter British oil tankers in April and now leases three Gibraltar-flag tankers which enjoy British naval protection.

A scheme to reflag 11 Kuwaiti tankers with the U.S. flag is set to go ahead next week.

The sources said the request to Britain was made in very general terms and Kuwait was unlikely to want to re-register additional ships at the moment. But it might want to sound out British readiness to do so in the future, they

Mr. Osaimi meanwhile left Ruwait Wednesday for talks on the Gulf war in West Germany and Italy as part of an Arab League delegation, the Kuwait News Agency (KUNA) reported.

The talks were expected to fecus on a proposed United Nations Security Council resolution on the seven-year-old conflict calling on Iran and Iraq to cease fighting. West Germany, with Italy and elected member of the council, has expressed reservations on the draft resolution, saying it is too haphly worded against Iran.

Meanwhile U.S. legislators who met with 10p government officials said the navy will start escorning U.S.-flagged Kuwaiti lankers through the war-torn Galf on July 23

The first tanker will be escorted up the 800-kilometre iong waterway to be loaded with oil and then back through the Strail of Hormuz at the mouth of the Gulf, the legislators said Tuesday.

The first convoy will include only one or two Kuwaiti tankers while later groups will probably be larger, said Congressman Les Aspin, an opposition Democrat and chairman of the House of Representatives Armed Services Committee. Mr. Aspin, Democratic Senator James Sasser and Senate minority leader Boh Dole, a Republican, said they were told that the first navy mission would be July 22.

Sen. Sasser, a leader of congressional attempts to block President Ronald Reagan's plan, said Democratic opponents would try again to win Senate approval of a resolution seeking a delay. To earlier attempts failed.

Administration officials have refused to announce an exact start-up date for the escorts, and Pentagon officials declined to comment on the July 22 date. At the White House, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said only that the navy's escort mission "will hegin soon." Later, an administration official who demanded anonymity said it was "unfortunate that congressmen have released details from a classified briefing." But Warren Nelson, a spokesman for Mr. Aspin, said it is assumed that nothing in such briefings is classified unless it is identified explicitly as such and a degree of classification is given. Sen. Dole, Sen. Sasser and Mr.

France denies apologising to Iran

over airport PARIS (Agencies) - France Wednesday denied it had apologised to Iran over an incident at Geneva airport in which a Paris-based Iranian diplomat was alleged to have been beaten by French customs guards. The airport incident is the latest in a series of disputes between France and Iran which have brought the two countries close to breaking relations.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said France's top diplomat in Tehran, Charge d'Affaires Pierre Lafrance, had discussed the incident with an Iranian official Tuesday

"Mr. Lafrance set out the facts He did not present any apologies on behalf of the French government," the spokesman said.

Tehran Radio said earlier that Mr. Lafrance had apologised over the incident and described it as a "source of regret."

According to Iran, diplomat Mohsen Aminzadeh was beaten by customs men at the French section of Geneva airport on Saturday when he refused to allow his case to be searched.

France says he injured himself. Iran Tuesday summoned the French consul in Tehran to appear before an Islamic Revolutionary Court to answer questions on his suspected espionage.

The Iranian move followed a French demand for an Iranian embassy employee in Paris to leave the embassy and appear before a judge to testify on his alleged links to guerrilla groups.

President Francois Mitterrand said France would stand firm against "intolerable threats" and the emhassy interpreter, Vahid Gordji, widely believed to be a senior Iranian intelligence officer, should answer to French jus-

On Tuesday night, the Foreign Ministry denied the accusations against French Consul in Tehran Paul Torri and said the action was taken to counter the French demand that Gordji, who has no diplomatic immunity, be turned

TEL AVIV (AP) - An opinion has controlled the area since that they wanted the military governpoll published Wednesday indicated most Israelis want the country to maintain its hold on the occupied West Bank and 20 per cent want to expel the 800,000 Palestinians living there.

The poll was conducted by the Modi'in Ezrahi Agency for the daily Maariy and appeared to indicate support for Army Gen. (res.) Rehavam Zeevi, who drew sharp criticism earlier this month when he said Israel should "transfer" Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza Strip to Arah countries.

Khomeini calls for demonstration during Haj

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Ira-nian pilgrims to Islam's holiest shrines in Saudi Arabia will stage two "splendid" demonstrations during the pilgrimage season to urge unity among the world's nearly 1 hillion Muslims, Iran's official news agency has reported.
Hojatoleslam Mahdi Karrubi, a cleric who will lead the Iranian pilgrims, told the agency that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini ordered the rallies "to invite pilgrims to unity."

Saudi Arabia has hanned poliical activity at the two holy sites in Mecca and Medina over the last few years. But security forces have had to confront fun-

Shi'ites, who tried to preach Tehran's revolutionary beliefs. The Islamic Republic News Agency (IRNA), monitored in Nicosia, said Khomeini believes the pilgrimage, or Haj, season "is

Mr. Karruhi said the demonstrations, which IRNA described as "splendid" and "massive," will be staged in both Mecca, and Medina.

religious ceremonies."

When asked if arrangements for these demonstrations have been worked out with Saudi offi-cials, Mr. Karrubi told IRNA: prisals.

"We ohev Imam Khomeini's views in relation with Haj." He did not elaborate. Mr. Karrubi left for Jeddah

Tuesday to prepare for the influx of Iranian pilgrims. More than 150,000 Iranians went to Saudi Arabia in last year's pilgrimage season. They formed the largest gathering of foreign pilgrims in the kingdom a:

North: Lawmakers tipped Libya to U.S. raids Senate Democratic and Republi-

WASHINGTON (AP) - Lt - quoted unnamed Reagan admi-Col. Oliver North has claimed nistration officials as the sources that statements by two lawmakers of information. tipped off Libya to the April 1986 U.S. bombing raid. But the evidence contradicts his assertion.

Col. North told the Iran-contra panel that two members of Congress emerged from a secret presidential briefing hours before the raid, and told the nation that President Ronald Reagan would speak on television that night on

He did not name the law

Col. North contended the tipoff may have been responsible for the heavy anti-aircraft fire encountered by U.S. pilots, and possibly the downing of an F-111 bomber in which the plane's two crewmen were killed: But a Senate report and news files show that for a week before the attack, numerous stories said the raid had been approved, mentioned possible targets, and

The leaks so concerned Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd that he issued a report on the subject on May 7, 1986. It said:

This military action was undertaken after a full week of news reports that quoted administration officials revealing the nature of the mission, against whom the raid would take place, roughly when it would occur, what targets would probably be strnck, and which countries would and would not assist in it, and after our allies had been told of the planned military raid."

The files also indicate that only one lawmaker - Sen. Claiborne Pell, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee commented on the npcoming presidential speech. On the afternoon of April 14,

1986, the president convened a

Sen. Pell refused to say whether any U.S. military action against Libva was imminent, hu: he told reporters that the president would speak to the nation that night. The chairman of the Senate

Iran-contra panel said Coi. North was "grossly unfair" to suggesi that Sen. Pell's announcement of the presidential speech alerted Linyans to the U.S. air raid. Sen. Daniel Inouye, in emotional closing remarks to Col. North on Tuesday, said neitner the loss of an F-111 bomber in the April 14, 1986, attack nor heavy anti-aircraft fire resulted from the secret meeting on Libya, inviting advance disclosure.

Arab air carriers hold talks

AMMAN (Petra) — The Amman-based Arah Air Carriers' Organisation (AACO) Wednesday decided to set up a consultative committee to help the organisation's secretary general decide on matters pertaining to air transport operations in the Arah World.

The meeting, held under the chairmanship of Mr. Adli Dajani, the AACO's secretary general, was attended by beads of AACO's specialised committees from Arah member countries. Mr. Dajani said that the participants reviewed a number of issues relating to the organisation and to civil aviation in the Arah

The organisation aims at promoting cooperation among Arah airline companies, modernising techniques and services, and training personnel on simulators and other advanced equipment, according to Mr. Dajani.

The AACO was moved to Amman from Beirut upon a recommendation from the organisation's general assembly held in Sana'a last April.

Jordan observes 'Arab Bread Day' today

AMMAN (Petra) — Today is "Arab Bread Day," an annual occasion observed in imple- control. mentation of a resolution passed by the first conference oo the production of cereals in the Arab World beld in 1984. On the eve of the occasion, the Ministry of Supply issued a statement in which it reaffirmed the government's determination to go ahead with plans designed to improve bread production and provide the hest quality at reasonable price for all citizens.

The statement quoted a ministry official as saying that plans are being made for setting up two modern automated bakeries in the governorates of Mafraq and Tableh and that licences are continually being issued for people wishing to open new hakeries.

The total number of bakeries in lordan until the beginning of 1987 stood at 757, altogether producing 605 tonnes of hread every day. The Ministry of Supply issued licences for the opening of 51 more hakeries in the Kingdom between January and June of 1987, the statement said.

In the 1970s, bakeries in Jordan were mannally operated. They did not provide enough bread for the rapidly increasing population, a situation which prompted the ministry to open three automated bakeries in Amman, Irbid and Zarqa, the state-

It said that all hakeries in Jordan are placed under constant

The government has become increasingly concerned with the cereal production since the 1950s when it was found that local production was not sufficient for the country's total consumption. An office was opened to take charge of the process of production, trading and marketing of cereals in the Kingdom. In addition, the ministry maintains controls on the quantity and quality of flour produced by the country's mills, the statement added.

Cereal production has been a concern of Jordan as well as other Arah countries, but unfortunately consumption is rapidly outpacing production in the Arab World, the statement noted.

It said that the Arah World's total production of cereals in 1970-1975 averaged 69 per cent of the overall need, but this rate dropped in 1980-1982 to 50 per cent. From 1984 and 1986, it further declined to 40 per cent. According to the ministry statement, the Arah World's total consumption of wheat in 1986 stood at 32 million tonoes whereas production stood at 9.5 million tonnes, prompting Arah countries to increase imports. It said that the Arah World now spends nearly $7 billion on the importation of wheat from other nations.

5-year plan needs JD 3.2b — Muasher

By Salameh B. Ne'matt Jordan Times Staff Reporter

AMMAN — Jordan needs JD 3.2 billion to fulfil the goals of its present five-year development plan and 44 per cent of that money would have to come from the private sector, Industry and Trade Minister Rajai Muasher said Wednesday.

The minister told Jordanian expatriates that the country needs private sector support to hring itself out of the present economic slump and called on expatriates to have faith in government laws providing incentives and protection for their possible investment in the

Dr. Muasher, speaking at the Third Annual Expatriate's congress, said the government's present economic policy is based on supporting the private sector and individual enterprise to contribute to the country's develop-

"The government is committed to its firm policy of providing and guaranteeing protection and security for capital invested in Jordan," Dr. Muasher told hundreds of expatriates representing Jordanians living in nearly 17 Arah and other countries.

The government is ready to guarantee "convenient investment and tax incentives and infrastructure services needed for the success" of such investment,

The minister pointed out that while the recession hitting the region is having "a negative impact on economic development in Jordan," he assured expatriates that the government is "in the process of containing these (negative) effects and limiting their influence" through sectoral and individual solutions.

Dr. Muasher said one of the main aims of the five-year (1986-90) development plan was to promote socio-economic goals such as achieving a steady real annual growth of five per cent and reducing unemployment through new investments and an expansion of the social security

"The achievement of these goals requires an investment worth nearly JD 3.2 hillion in which the private sector is expected to contribute 44 per cent," the minister told the conference. He said the scarcity of local revenues has forced Jordan to "look for incentives that would attract capital from Arab and foreign countries.

According to Dr. Muasher, the investment climate in Jordan is unique due to the Kingdom's political stability. its strategic location and its free economic system." This, the minister said, qualifies Jordan to become a trade and financial intermediary between regional markets."

The minister told the expatriates the government is committed to its pledges to carry out recommendations regarding expatriate investment. He said the government has already increased incentives and investment services for expatriates through intensifying contacts with host countries, expanding the base for tax exemptions and providing basic services

Dr. Muasher also told the conference the ministry has offered all available facilities for establishing a holding company owned by Jordanian expatriates, but, added that the project "has not yet seen the light." He did not cite reasons, but said he hoped the resolutions of the conference, expected to be out on Thursday, will be "in the interest of Jordanians at home and abroad." Ministry of Planning's Secretary General Ziad Fariz, addressing the conference later, said the government had taken steps in the area of international cooperation on the political and economic levels. He pointed out that Jordan, the first Arab country to endorse the Arab economic unity agreement, is keen on signing several trade and finance protocols with Arah and foreign

JERASH — This is the second time the Tunisian National Group for Folkloric Arts is performing at the Jerash Arts Festival. This year, however, they are presenting new sketches and dances, including a traditional Tunisian wedding ceremony, and also a solo sung by the well-known Tunisian folklore singer,

Sofia Al Sadeo. The costumes of the performers vary in colour and style depending on what part of Tunisia the dance and music represent. The spectacular colours and movements of the performers, and the beat of the music, makes it hard for the audience to sit still without clapping and tapping their feet. The manager of the troupe, Mr. Hamadi Benothman, told a group of journalists on Wednesday that years after the formation of the troupe, the aim remains the Artemis Steps from 9:30 to 11 same: to present an artistic por- p.m.

The ministry paper said that there were nearly 328,000 Jordanians employed outside Jordan. out of whom 276,000 were in Arah countries, mainly states that are members of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC). About 52,000 work in other countries. Mr. Khasawneh said that in 1986 about 3,000 Jordanians found jobs outside Jordan out of whom 1,381 went to Saudi Arabia.

He said the year 1983 signalled the beginning of the shrinking of foreign labour markets for Jordanians with nearly 3,000 returning in 1986. About 5,000 Jordanians are expected to return by 1990.

Mr. Khasawneh said that the government was in constant touch with foreign governments for the purpose of safeguarding the interests of Jordanians working abroad. He noted that Prime Minister Zaid Rifai visited Kuwait last year and Mr. Hassan made similar trips to Gulf states to discuss the issue.

Vocational Training Institute Director General Munther Masri told the conference later that nearly 30,000 Jordanians would be trained in various fields, including vocational training, during the period of the 1986-1990 five-year plan. He said vocational training would help efforts to ease the problem of unemployment in Jordan.

Representatives of Jordanian expatriates heard measures to questions they raised in between speeches by Officials. They later thanked the government for its concern for their problems.

Peace conditions — a two-way street

THE current visit to Israel by a Soviet consular delegation has been overblown by Israel and its allies. Granted the visit comes in spite of a continuing embargo on official Soviet visits to Israel initiated in the aftermath of the 1967 war. But the scope and nature of the visit do not constitute any departure from the official Soviet stand which insists on an end to Israeli aggression and occupation of Arab territories before restoring diplomatic relations. This has been confirmed by the head of the Soviet delegatioo, Yeveny Antipov, when he said upon arrival in Israel, the Soviet Union would not renew ties with Israel as long as there was no normalisation of the situation in the Middle East and the projected international peace conference on the Middle East was not convened.

Thus, by linking the restoration of Soviet-Israeli relations to both a peace conference and a resolution to the Palestinian problem, the Soviet Union is lending strong support to Middle East peace efforts.

China is also making its relations with Israel contingent on tangible efforts for a solution to the Palestinian problem,

It is in this vein, in fact, that Arab calls for an international boycott of Israel were made. Had such a boycott materialised, the region might have not been kept paralysed for so long, waiting for an Israeli consent to hold an international parley on the Palestine issue and denied the just and durable peace for which we have been yearning.

The Soviet Union had recognised Israel since its creation in 1948 and had diplomatic relations with the Jewish state prior to the 1967 war. The severence of diplomatic relations should not mean breaking all contacts, especially if such contacts could further advance the cause of peace in the area.

It is true that in order for the peace conference to succeed and for the Soviet Union to play a useful role in it, Moscow must be oo speaking terms with all participants. But it is equally true and important that the same principle should apply to the other permanent members of the U.N. Security Council, who should be prepared to engage in official talks with all the involved parties, including the PLO.

While the permanent members of the U.N. Security Council may want to avoid dictating their conditions of peace on the antagonists, they cannot shirk their responsibilities and relinquish their roles as mediators at the conference. We believe this Mr. Antinov meant conference would not force peace conditions on any of the involved parties, including Israel. It is for us Arabs, now, to declare to the world that we too will reject any coercion when peace terms are negotiated, especially those which could come from the Israelis themselves.

Al Ra'i: Another American 'hero'

IT is rather difficult to find a convincing explanation for current U.S. information media attempts to transform Oliver North from a deceiver into a national hero. The United States history abounds with names of national heroes for great feats and prominent political achievements for which they deserved the respect and appreciation of the American public. But we cannot imagine North's name to be among those men who among others include Abraham Liocoln and John Kennedy. What Oliver North did does not only represent a flagrant violation of the principles and ethics of the American nation or its values and justice but rather a direct insult to the American people. North has admitted to destroying official documents and forging others, and also misleading the U.S. Congress, that also he lied in most of his statements before the inquiry committee. North also admitted to being involved in the U.S.-Israeli-Iranian affair, the Irangate scandal, and that he had transferred funds to the Nicaragua contras now fighting the legitimate government in Nicaragua.

Despite all that, the American media continue to present North as a national hero deserving appreciation and admiration, instead of calling for his condemnation and his punishment. This American media might he successful for the time being hut we are certain that the American people cannot and will not show admiration for those who lie or commit forgery, and can never truly give appreciation to those that fuel conflicts.

Al Dustour: Masri briefs expatriates

FOREIGN Minister Taher Al Masri addressed the Third Jordanian Expatriates Conference in Amman, explaining Jordan's deep faith in the unity of Arah security and Jordan's national commitment to defend the Arab Nation. He also reiterated this country's commitment to work for the re-establishment of unity, of ranks among Arab states. The problems that stood in the way of holding an Arah summit in 1983 should prompt Arab countries to work towards overcoming them and towards holding such necessary meeting for the sake of achieving consensus and forging unified Arah action. Mr. Masri pointed to Jordan's support for Iraq in its defence of the Arab Nation in the face of Iranian aggression and expansionist designs. An Arab summit is needed now to find solutions for these problems and for ending inter-Arab differences over the Iran-Iraq war and enlisting all the Arab countries support for Iraq which is defending the eastern flank of the Arab World. In his address the foreign minister referred to the Arab Fez summit which he said had charted a common Arab strategy, calling for the Arabs to resolve the Arab-Israeli conflict through an international peace conference that would guarantee the rights of the Arah people in implementation of U.N. Security Council resolutions. The minister said also that Jordan, through the Feh. 15 agreement of 1985, had sought to work with the PLO towards convening the proposed international conference; but the abrogation of that agreement can by no means change the Jordanian positioo vis-a-vis the Palestine problem.

Sawt Al Shaab: Soviet stand appreciated

THE Soviet Union's stand at a recent U.N. sponsored conference on trade development reflects Moscow's increased attention towards alleviating the sufferings of the poorer nations and improving the economies of Third World countries. The USSR's total aid to developing nations in the past year amounted to nearly $24 billion, and its participation to a U.N.-fund for developing world trade has now reached 6.2 per cent. Moscow's increased keenness in this respect reflects that country's genuine tendency towards promoting international trade and economic cooperation with special attention to ties linking the Socialist bloc with the Third World.

Angry bystanders questioned at the scene of Tuesday's carnage were at a loss to say who was behind it.

The provincial government of Sind, which includes Karachi, pointed immediately to outside involvement, in a press statement which said: "The explosions appeared to be the work of

The Anglo-French clash in rashly given should be honoured. Lebanon and Syria, 1940-45 By A.B. Gaunson

Macmillan Press, London AT dawn, on 8 June 1941, Australian troops moved into Leba-non from Palestine, and simul-taneously Free French and Indian troops crossed over into Syria. This was Operation Exporter, designed to prevent the Levant states, then under Vichy control, from becoming a Nazi base of operations at a moment when the Allied position in the Middle East was extremely precarious. To ease the way of the invaders, General Catroux, de Gaulle's representative, issued a proclamation which included the fateful sentence: "I have come to terminate the mandatory regime and proclaim you free and independent." For the next four years Syria and Lebanon were the scene of a three-way struggle between British, French, and indigeoous Arabs. It was British troops: Free French, and Vichy supporter who remained strong in the administration. Most Arabs were interested only in getting rid of the French, whether Free or

General Spears, the francophile British member of parliament who had been largely responsible for bringing de Gaulle to England, was installed in Beirut charged with liaison both with the French and the Arabs. # Scientists cite evidence for a tenth planet

(USIA).

WASHINGTON - U.S. scientists report indications that a 10th planet may exist that takes at least 7000 years to orbit the sun and is five times more massive than the Earth, .

At the same time, astronomers using new observation techniques have obtained what would be the best evidence yet for planetary systems orbiting other stars like the sun. The discovery of other solar systems would increase expectations about the possibility of extraterrestrial life in the uni-

National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) scientist John Anderson said in an interview July 9 that evidence for the existence of a 10th planet in the far outer reaches of our solar system is partially based on past unexplained variations in the orbits of Uranus and Neptune, the seventh and eighth outermost planets of the solar system.

The effect of the 10th planet's gravity on Uranus and Neptune would explain the orbital variations, which astronomers measured over a period of at least a century until 1910. From that year until recently, however, measurements have failed to show any unexplained onter planet variations.

Anderson maintains that this negative data, together with the absence of gravitational effects on two U.S. spacecraft now travelling through the outermost parts of the solar system, suggests that the orbit of the 10th planet is so distant and elongated that it only nears the sun and known planets every 700 to 1000 years. may have caused the cataclysmic

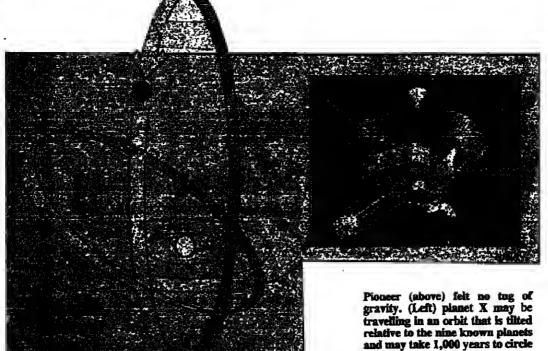

In three years of precise measuring, Anderson has found no gravitational effect on Pioneers 10 and 11 that cannot be explained by the known nine planets. The two Pioneer spacecraft, both launched 15 years ago to explore the planet Jupiter and now heading into interstellar space, are sensitive to even minute gravity effects of planetary bodies.

Anderson, a principal investigator in celestial mechanics for the Pioneer probes, said the data also indicate that the orbit of the 10th planet is very unusual, tilted at almost right angles to the orbits of the other planets and stretching anywhere from 16,000 to 32.000 million kilometres across.

In order to reconcile the fact that you have something perturbing the orbits of Uranus and Neptune for more than 100 years, and yet nothing seems to disturb the Pioneer spacecraft, we had to create a rather unusual orbit for planet X," he said. "When you put all the data together you come up with this scenario of a planet X that's causing the dis-

Anderson said the bizarre orbit of the tenth planet is not unique in the solar system. The orbit of Pinto, the most distant known planet fro the sun and somewhat smaller than the moon, is inclined 30 degrees above and below the plane of the other planets. And then there's Triton, the large moon of Neptune, whose orbit is highly inclined and in the opposite direction to other objects in the solar system.

Anderson said his data also tends to strengthen the idea that some kind of 10th planetary body comet impacts with Earth that some scientists believe are responsible for periodic mass extinctions, including that of the dinosaurs 65 million years ago.

According to this theory, perturbations from the outer planets over millions of years cause the orbit of planet X to slowly shift, periodically carrying the planet into the Oort Cloud, a giant ring of comets and debris that scientists believe exists in the outer reaches of the solar system. The planet's gravity would then pull some of these comets into a collision course with Earth. Fossil studies indicate the peaks of extinction occur on Earth about every

26 million years, leading to speculation about some extraterrest-

Anderson said long time periods are needed to reach final conclusions about variations in planet orbits and that "you have to use all the data, including the Pioneer spacecraft, to conclude that planet X is far away now and not disturbing the outer planets, at least/not at a detectable level."

Scientists at the U.S. Naval Observatory estimate that planet X, if it exists, made its closest approach to the sun in 1750 and is expected to make its next close approach between the years 2500

"But 1 don't think we have to wait till 2800 before it's detected," Anderson said. "If it's there it will be detected by some other means. The space telescope could make a contribution, or a new infrared facility," such as the Infrared Astronomical Satellite whose all-sky survey in 1983 found 10,000 galaxies never before seen.

Meanwhile, new data in recent months support the view of many scientists that planetary systems similar to the sun's are sprinkled throughout the universe.

A team of Canadian astronomers, using a new telescopie technique, have discovered what could be the best evidence yet for planets around other stars. The astronomers told a recent meeting of the American Astronomical Society that their survey of 16 nearby solar-type stars revealed clear indications of two of them are accompanied by objects believed to be more massive than the planet Jupiter. The astronomers conducted their observations for the past six years at the U.S.-Canada-France telescope atop Mauna Kea in Hawaii. While not able to observe the extrasolar objects directly, the technique used by the Canadian team involved measuring shifts in the spectrum of the star caused by a slight gravitational pull exerted on the star by the smaller companion

Earlier this year astronomers using a radio telescope at the California Institute of Technology discovered that a star much like our sun in its youth possesses a disk of gas orbiting it in accordance with 17th century astronomer Johannes Kepler's laws of planetary rotation. The discovery of the orbiting disk around the star HL Tauri is the most definitive demonstration yet that other stars might have planetary systems like our own.

But astronomers have yet to find a planet orbiting a star out-side the solar system. More conclusive observations may not be possible until larger and more sensitive telescopes are lanched into space, above the obscuring atmosphere of the Earth. Many astronomers express confidence that the breakthrough discovery will be made in the next decade.

THE crime committed in Jabal Al Hussein, in which a husinessman was shot dead in broad daylight, has stunned all Jordanians, accustomed to and proud of the stability and security that this country enjoys.

For a man to be robbed and killed in the heart of the city at 8:15 a.m., in front of so many eyewitnesses, is most shocking. But the crime has certainly developed a sense of cooperation between civilians and the police, who say they receive hundreds of calls from people eager to give the tinlest detail that may help in

I have seen policemen in the streets, a copy of the identicast sketch of the assailant in their hands, looking suspiciously at a dark-haired young man with a moustache. Unfortunately, the description of the killer is so common that It renders the job more difficult.

However, rewards offered by civilians, not directly involved, to any person who would hand over the assailant, are most encouraging, Apart from the Public Security Department, which offered JD 10,000, different prizes ranging from JD 1,000 and up, brought the whole reward for identifying the killer to JD 35,000.

Soviet emigre artists in New York wonder, does anybody care?

By Jonathan Lyons

NEW YORK — Soviet artists who emigrated to the United States to paint, write and dance have found the "freedom" they sought but not the fulfilment. At home, they attracted the attention of a committed avant garde brotherhood, a small but steady andience and a broad security apparatus. Here, many feel lost and alone.

They have reverted to the stratagems they used in the Soviet Union to pursue their own private visions - taking outside jobs, fiving outside the system :: "There, somebody - the state, artists, the public — gave a damn," said flamboyant poet and artist Henry Khudyakov, who lives in a makeshift room atop a small house in Brooklyn.

'Now. disgusted with it." For artists Rimma and Valery Gerlovin, emigration from their native Moscow brought a freedom to experiment with new media and top-quality materials. It has not, however, integrated them into the Western art scene. "There we can do video, music, work with wood or metal," said Rimma. "It was like working with a chamber orchestra now it's an entire opera

"But for Russian emigre art as a movement, no-one cares about us. There was some interest, but not anymore," added her husband Valery. All three are part of an artistic Soviet and American artists, Roman said, are the emigres' generally broader intellectual background, the presence here of a potentially lucrative art market and the Russian tradition of art as politics - first under the Tsars and now under the Soviet system.

As a result the focus of current American art, say the Gerlovins, is technique, not content.

National Geographic MOOREFIELD, West Virginia - Lottie Lakin would have had a conniptiou. The street in front of ber hourse was barricaded. Hundreds of people were milling around her yard. A small man with a microphone stood on her porch, making a big racket.

In the course of her 79 years, Miss Lakin had earned a reputation as one of the crankiest citizens of this county-seat town of 2,400. She complained, regularly and profanely, about loudly played radios and anything else that rubbed her the wrong way.

 $\sigma_{i}: \mathbb{R}^{n}$

When she died last fall, she had no idea that the yard of the unfinished, unpainted frame house her father was building when he died in the 1920s would be the scene of a memorable auction last spring.

Everything was sold: the house itself (for $29,000); Miss Lakin's 19-year-old Mercury Comet (for $200); her furniture (including a class-front oak cabinet, for $1,050); and a lifetime accumulation of hundreds of other possessions, some precious, many of dubious worth. At the hub of all the commotion stood the veteran auctioneer,

44-year-old H. Junior Wilson, 125 pounds of nervous energy compressed in a 5-foot-5-inchr

For five hours, nonstop, Wilson and an assistant, Roscoe Collins, chanted into the microphone, a rhythmic machinegun litany of words and numbers meaningful to the initiated, mostly unintelligible to the outsider.

"Chest of drawers, chest of drawers," Wilson began one Niagara of staccato verbiage. Ten-dollar bill....5 bid 6 bid 6 bid 6 bid 6 bid 6...bid 7 bid 7 bid 7..." and so on, a dollar at a time, until finally, "18,18,18! All done

Wilson's sales are just a tiny part of a $100-billion-a-year auction business in the United States. That figure is the estimate of Dean H. Parker of Logan, Utah, president of the National Auctioneers Association. "The auction business right now is enjoying prohably the greatest prosperity it ever has," says Parker, a leading auctioneer of horses. His association, headquartered in Overland Park, Kansas, has some 6,000 members among about 32,000 auctioneers, a good auctioneer, you've got to have good product knowledge," says Richard W. Dewees, president of the Missouri school.

"I like a guy that is clean-cut and looks a lot like a businessman, because he is a business-man," Dewees says. "You don't want some hippie out there."

Good ones can make plenty of money from their commissions. Much depends on where they live and the product they sell. "I know lots and lots of anctioneers who make six figures," Dewees says. "And I know lots who make half that."

He also raises cattle on a 40-acre farm near Moorefield and licensed. To qualify for licensing, sells real estate outside his auction business. He frequently auctions real estate at foreclosure sales ou the courthouse steps. In an average year, he says, he conducts 10 or 15 estate sales.

"Better than average" was his description of the Lottie Lakin auction. He wouldn't disclose the total amount of the sale. His commission, with a bonus from Miss Lakin's niece, brought him close to $2,000.

Wilson has been auctioneering around Moorefield since he was in high school. He is a 1965 praduate of an auction school in Decatur, Indiana. At the Lakin auction he knew most of the people in the crowd, including knowledgeable antique dealers, farmers in bib overalls and feed caps, and modish couples in running shoes and designer jeans. Wilson, a tacitum fellow when he's not woking, quotes a slogan that he says governs his sales: You can shear a sheep once a year, but you can only skin him.

Applying this maximum to the Lakin sale, he informed prospective bidders of cracked, chipped, or otherwise damaged merchandise. "It worked for just a little bit the other day," he said of an old mantel clock, "It has worked and not worked. But it does have movement occasionally - just like the rest of us." The clock sold for $65.

Some bidders left with bargains. Others, swept up by the excitement of bidding, probably paid too much. Wilson was philoPolish city of Krakov. His interest in the theatre dates

Pyongyang says the package falls well short of its demands

Olympic tourists must carry AIDS-free certificate

SEOUL (R) — Tourists visiting South Korea for next year's Olympic Games will have to carry certificates declaring they are free of AIDS, Health Minister Rhee Hai-Won said Wednesday.

Rhee told reporters about 300,000 foreign visitors were experted for the games and there were fears they would cause the killer disease to spread here.

The minister, due to attend an Asia-Pacific AIDS Conference in Sydney next week, said be boped governments would give public backing to Seoul's decision to demand that all Olympic fans carry such certificates.

The South Korean government bas already announced plans to introduce a law that would punish anyone spreading the virus with up to seven years in jail.

The legislation, which will go before parliament later this year, would also ban foreigners carrying the virus from entering the eduntry and restrict the activities of other AIDS carriers.

Ministry officials said the country had no confirmed cases of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome even though eight people, including three women prostitutes, had shown positive results in AIDS antibody tests.

In February, a 62-year-old man suspected of carrying the virus died. The ministry has refused to regard him as the country's first AIDS fatality, claiming his death was not caused by the virus.

Bankers had seen the opening in May of a computerised stock trading floor in Riyadh as part of wide-ranging measures to bring Saudi banking more in line with Western practices.

Dealing was suspended on June 1, apparently because of computer problems and lack of facilities for trading large block of shares, and dealers in the 46 listed stocks reverted to the loosely coordinated telephone and telex market.

But bankers and lawyers said the three-week experiment with what amounted to a stock exchange had highlighted the wider problem of fitting a Western banking system within an Islamic legal structure.

Differences between the Sandi Arahian Monetary Agency (SAMA) and the ministry of commerce over who should regulate share transactions masked underlying concern by Saudi Arabia's religious hierarchy over the pace of reforms, they said.

WASHINGTON (R) - The U.S. foreign trade deficit wide-ned to $14.4 billion in May compared with $13.3 billion in April, the Commerce Department said

Financial markets were closely watching the trade figures for signs of improvement and an indication the dollar has fallen enough to bring steady reduction in the huge deficit.

The widening in the deficit in May reflected faster growth in imports than in U.S. exports and followed two straight months of improvement in the trade gap, the department said.

Administration officials had said last month the United States had turned a corner and the deficit was shrinking due to the

On the debt crisis, the report said lending to developing countries has dropped again, with 'debt fatigue" spreading among both borrowers and creditors "and is leading them willy-nilly towards adjusting the terms on old debt.

Falling commodity prices mean Third World countries have a harder time earning the money they need to pay off their deht, despite the reschedulings negoti-ated since 1982, UNCTAD said. "The debt strategy pursued

"Indeed, the hope that countries heavily indebted to private capital markets can be restored to creditworthiness in the foreseeable future now seems further than ever from being fulfilled," it added.

UNCTAD said the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund will need more resources, as multilateral agencies are the ooe, significant source of new funds for much of the Third World.

For the poorest countries, mainly in sub-Saharan Africa, "it is widely recognised that without new aid and debt relief, those countries' attempts to help themselves will fail," it added.

OAU ministers may seek waiver on African debts In a related development, foreign ministers of the 51-member Organisation of African Unity (OAU), meeting here next week, will probably ask creditors to waive hillions of dollars worth of dehts, an OAU official said Wednesday.

"The new stance is not to ask the creditors for more time to pay or additional cash to make their economies viable ... what the ministers are expected to decide upon is for the industrial countries to forget and forgive the $200 billion African debts," the official told Reuters. OAU meetings have repeatedly called for a international cooference on Africa's debts but the foreign ministers bave never before proposed that their creditors write the debts off.

The official, who declined to be named, said the change in approach to the deht problem stemmed from a growing consensus among African countries that the continent had reached a stage where it could no longer honour its deht obligations.

The OAU foreign ministers, in the six-day meeting starting on July 20, are also expected to discuss South Africa and its neighbours and progress towards implementing a $128 billion emergency recovery programme launched last year.

Aquino sets up experimental self-government for tribes

·MANILA (R) - President Corazon Aquino signed a decree Wednesday setting up a limited form of self-government for one million mountain tribesmen that could become a forerunner to autonomy for the Philippines' Muslim south.

The decree establishes an experimeotal administrative body and a legislature for the Cordillera Mountain region inhabited by more than 100 small tribes that have suffered from centuries of neglect by the central governmeot in Manila,

The five-province region, about 325 kilometres north of Manila, is rich in timber, gold, copper and other minerals that up to oow have been exploited largely by foreign husinessmen.

It is also a hotbed of an 18-year insurgency led by the Communist New People's Army (NPA).

Under the decree, the region would have a chief administrative officer appointed by Mrs. Aquino and a security force or militia that would keep the peace in the area. The militia would be under military supervisioo.

A government team negotiated details of the decree with a group of tribesmen led by renegade Roman Catholic priest Canrado Balweg, who once fought alongside the NPA but broke with them last year to negotiate peace with Mrs. Aquino.

LIVERPOOL (AP) — An exhibit of Beatle memorabilia failiog to attract large oumbers of tourists in Liverpool has found a temporary home in a Texas shopping mall, the exhibit's general manager said. The Beatle City Exhibit in Liverpool, where the band started in the 1960s, will open at the West End marketplace in Dallas in early August, said the general manager, Mike Byrne. The exhibit is to return to a new home in Liverpool next spring, Byrne said. The exhibit, the world's only permanent exhibit of Beatle memorabilia, includes about 1,000 items. They range from photographs and letters to a steinway piano - complete with keyboard cigarette burns - on which the late John Lennon composed his songs and a mini car Ringo Starr had converted to carry his full drum kit, Byrne said. The three-year-old, financially troubled exhibit was sold to a London husinessman, John Symons, in April for £200,000 ($322,000), Byrne said. The previous owner was Radio City, an independent commercial radio station in Liverpool, Byrne said. The Dallas Shopping Mall offered a 1,000-square-metre exhibition site and a $100,000 promotion budget. "They're (also) paying a fee but the actual details we'll keep to ourselves," Byrne said.

Gang help themselves to millions

LONDON (R) - Two armed raiders posing as husinessmen made off with a fortune in cash and jewellery from a London safe-deposit centre once billed as the world's most secure, police has said. The exact value of the robbery was not known as the contents of the deposit boxes were private but one estimate set the haul at about £10 million ($16 million). Police said they were looking for two men who fooled guards at the Knightsbridge Safe Deposit Centre near the luxury department store Harrods by posing as potential customers when they arrived in the afternoon carrying briefcases. Once in the downstairs valut, the pair produced a sawed-off shotgun and a pistol, handcuffed two security guards and held a gun to the managing director's head while they emptied 113 safety-desposit boxes. "We are dealing with two very cool customers. It's been very well planned," a police spokesman said. Police were seeking to contact depositors in order to assess the value of the haul. Anxious customers who flocked to the centre included a member of the Asprey Jewellery Family, who said she had lost all her jewels in the raid.

LONDON (R) — Copies of a retired secret agent's memoirs arriving in Britain, where the book is banned, could lead to its uhlicación here shortly, a lisher's lawyer has said.

Journalists arriving from the United States, where former MI5. counter-intelligence agent Peter Wright's book Spycatcher went on sale this week, brought a number of copies through customs at London's Heathrow Airport without being challeoged.

"I would anticipate that the book would be published at the beginning of August," said David Hooper, a lawyer for Heinemann, holders of the British rights to the memoirs.

The British government, in a hid to discourage former secret agents from disclosing classified information, has taken court action to prevent the book being published here and in Australia. Speaking on television, Mr.
Hooper said publication could proceed if there was an agreement not to start fresh litigation.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher ruled out as ineffective any attempt to stop air travellers hringing Spycatcher from the Un-ited States but said in parliament Tuesday she was considering leg-al action to confiscate Wright's profits from the book. Doubleday Book Store in Manhattan New York said it had sold nearly all its 200 copies since the

Some of the book's more pungent revelations have appeared in British and American oewspapers and the U.S. publisher said such excerpts spurred publication.

But Peter Mayer, executive director of Viking Penguin Pub-lishers of New York, said the book, whose initial run is 50,000 copies was not published with controversy in mind.

"The American readership was heing spoiled by newspaper accounts of excerpts from the book," Mayer told Reuters in a telephooe interview. "The book's editor) felt, if I don't publish it oow, whatever is of interest to the readership will be diminished."

He said any attempt to intro-duce the book into Britain was the concern of the British customs service and not the publisher's as Viking Penguin had no plans to publish Spycatcher in Britain.

Swastika prompted speculation that Heinz-Dieter Becker was the victim of Neo-Nazis or right-wing extremists. But local Social Democratic officials doubted the theory, and police said Becker's death remained a mystery.
